“Your notes for questions, openings, and closings should consist of single words or brief phrases, not full sentences. . . Many people let themselves believe that they can't work from notes, and absolutely must have everything written out. Every single one of those people is wrong. They are simply afraid to try it often enough to get the hang of it. These people can be counted on to be boring in court, to lose juror attention, to have no idea how a jury is reacting, to have minimal rapport with jurors, and to have little control over witnesses.” - David Ball

Invitation to Participants as you leave this week of learning:

- We know that change will only happen if you choose to change. Prepare yourself to make changes when you return to where you work to implement what you have learned this week. Identify the one change that you can most easily make and the one change that would make the most difference. Write them below. Find one person back in your workplace or in your personal life to be your supporter, coach, encourager on making these 2 changes.

- 1) Easiest Change:
- 2) Change that would make the most difference:
- 3) Person you will ask to help you make these 2 changes:

“It’s not a question of telling something that’s not true. It’s telling something that makes it true. That’s what makes a great trial lawyer.”
-Stephen Wizner
